Microchips Save Lives

But only if you use them right

Every day, lost dogs end up in shelters or with finders while their families are out there searching, heartbroken.

Microchipping is only step one. A microchip that is never registered, or a found dog that is never reported, cannot bring a dog home.

KEY ACTIONS

- Register the chip with your current contact info.
- Scan every found dog, even if they "look like a stray."
- File a lost or found report with your local shelter.

MICROCHIPPING IS ONLY STEP ONE

- You must register the chip with your current contact info.
- You must scan every found dog, even if they "look like a stray."
- You must file a lost or found report with your local shelter.

WHY EACH STEP MATTERS

A microchip that's never registered won't help. A found dog without a report can't be reunited. And a dog sitting in someone's yard is still missing.

Microchip. Register. Scan. Report. That's how dogs get home.
